

Learning Objectives

1. Participants will learn about the effective use of spirituality and religion as positive coping strategies for survivors of childhood trauma.
2. Participants will learn ways that religious beliefs can be both assets and barriers to the trauma recovery process.
3. Participants will learn strategies for incorporating spirituality and religiosity into the assessment and treatment process.